Health Innovation

The Canadian Light Source, located on the University of Saskatchewan campus, is a natural home for collaboration between leading health scientists. With the university’s health sciences colleges within walking distance, the CLS is a hub for discovery, innovation and solutions as scientists from the U of S and elsewhere explore how the human body works from head to toe.